For nearly 50 years, the Paccot family have been exploring their “terroirs”, trying to gain deeper understanding of the personality of each vineyard. It is a slow, step-by-step process requiring a great deal of patience. They achieve this by using farming and winemaking methods that respect natural rhythms, and by refusing to make compromises during the long wine producing process. Their aim is to make a contribution towards revealing the full potential of the great “terroirs” in the canton of Vaud – particularly by creating innovative blends whenever complementarities allow it.
